

Huddle Notes
Historic Courthouse, Room 212
Tuesday, November 15, 2016
8:12am-8:45am

Shane Schoeller, Greene County Clerk, opened the meeting. He thanked all Greene County employees who worked the election. He stated he tries to have a Greene County employee at every polling place because of their professionalism and knowledge of the county. He also thanked the Sheriff's Office for providing security at several polling places.

Harold Bengsch congratulated Shane for using law enforcement.

Janet Price congratulated Shane on the new election equipment and for the relative ease of working the election.

Angie Crews gave a presentation created by Zingerman's Community of Businesses for the Gathering of Games. She focused on the following points:

Believe in the power of beliefs.

- Things are likely to go well when we actively choose to be happy and live joyful lives.
- What do you believe about Open Book Management?
  - Builds trust, facilitates better decision making, builds relationships, makes new leaders, creates recognition and appreciation for success
- Are your beliefs positive, neutral, or negative? Your actions will follow your beliefs.
- We can reverse negative belief cycles. We can work on changing how we see things.
- What is happening in the world is based upon what we believe.

Huddle Challenge Entries:

- Budget, IS, Juvenile, and Auditor Departments are participating in the challenge so far.
  - Challenge voting is pushed back to 12/13/16.
  - Entries will be accepted through 11/18/16.

What brings value to your department? How do you define it?

- Auditor's Office gave several examples.
  - Brought office together as a team to work on projects
  - We challenge ourselves instead of settling for as is.
  - We develop leadership skills, improve processes, open lines of communication with other departments.
