

Great Game Huddle Notes October 1, 2019

Today's huddle was about Character First and Commission Corner. Jeff Bassham started today's huddle by talking about responsibility.

- Responsibility is knowing and doing what is expected of me.
 - Understanding expectations
 - Knowing the expectation and getting the clarity of what needs to be done.
 - According to the clip we watch, the women stated that if you're responsible you will give yourself 100%.
1. Know what's expected
 - Jeff believes that this is the most common break down in all relationship
 - Each relationship has a unique role and responsibilities – as in employee, employer, coworker, spouse, parent, child, sibling, neighbors, etc.
 2. Keep your commitments
 - Doing what you promise
 - Managing expectations – can't do that but let's do this or telling the individual let's do it this way instead of this because.....
 - Trust is easier kept than recovered.
 3. Do your Best
 - Do your best job you can do.

Audience:

- I don't micromanage my team and at times it hard to give clarification on my expectations.
- Accounting is an art not a science. If there was a limited expectation there's a chance I might crush their creativity.
- It's about the team and be able to keep the communication between each other.

Commission Corner

- Working closely with the Budget's Office.
- Getting ready for Good Morning Springfield
- Hwy Ice Cream Challenge
