Director of Information System Jess Kerr explained to the Commission some of the budget items that his department has requested. Kerr informed the Commission that there is equipment in the county reaching their end of life most of these pieces are 8-9 years old.. Kerr explained that items listed on his requests are in priority of importance. Discussion ensued on other items needed and how crucial some of these items are on the list of needs. Auditor Cindy Stein stated that it is important for us to maintain the equipment we have versus spending money on new equipment for new projects. Kerr explained that with new projects and new equipment from the projects bogs down the current equipment that is already at end of life. The Commission showed understanding of how important the items Kerr detailed are to maintain basic county functions.

With no other business the meeting was adjourned.
